There are two ways to use materials copyrighted by somebody else in your work;

authorization from the copyright holder

Quotation → not necessary to obtain

Reproduction → always requires

Requirements for quotations

1. The quoted part is obviously subordinate to the relevant parts created by the author in his work.
2. The quoted part must be made clearly identifiable with quotation marks or by other appropriate means.
3. The source is clearly identified.

Using a journal article or book as your doctorate thesis

Check the publishing agreement or the licensing agreement with the respective publisher or society.

1. Would you transfer the copyrights to the publisher?
2. Can it be used in a thesis?
3. Can it be made available on the internet?

Planning to post or publish your doctorate thesis

Check with the publisher in advance.

1. Whether is it permissible for the thesis you had already handed in to the university to be submitted or published.
2. Whether is it permissible to submit and publish thesis that has already be made available over the internet.
